REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

To the Citizens of London:

We submit to you our annual report.

Our schools during the past year have been conducted along about the same lines as usual, and the majority have been successful.

We have had ten schools during the year and sixteen different teachers. In one way or another we are constantly losing some of our best teachers, and the supply of young teachers here in town is not equal to the demand; this has caused us to increase the wages in several of our schools.

In some of our schools the average attendance has been almost perfect, in others bad. In one school of six scholars, five had a perfect attendance for the fall and winter terms, and three of them for the entire year, one being a boy four years old. In another school a boy has not been absent or tardy for the last three years. If some parents would pay more attention to the regular attendance of their children they would make better progress.

Repairs have been made upon the Osborne school-house during the past year. It has been sheathed overhead, a new floor laid, and new seats put in, thus making all of our schoolhouses that we use in good condition except the Moore and Cate.

Only about ten per cent. of our scholars ever attend a high school or academy, and it remains for us to provide them with such instruction, supply them with such books, and give them such advantages as will best fit them for the duties of life, remembering ever that our common schools are our "country's hope," and that he only is wise who persistently pursues that which is highest and most important.
